DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Maruyama (JP11127300).

Per claims 1 and 7, Maruyama discloses a mobile terminal having telephonic function and comprising a control means, wherein the control means carries out both a standby operation for monitoring and incoming call and an image processing operation for processing an image captured by an image capture means, wherein the control means prohibits the standby operation during an image capture operation of the image capture for capturing the image when a first predetermined condition is satisfied (see paragraphs 29-39).

Per claim 2, Maruyama further teaches that a radio environment measuring means for measuring a state of a radio environment that is involved in the standby operation, wherein the first predetermined condition is satisfied when the radio environment measuring means detects that the radio environment involved in the standby operation is in a noise environment (see paragraphs 29-31).

Per claim 3, Maruyama further teaches that a notification means for conducting a first notification operation, wherein the control means commands the notification means to carry out the first notification operation when the standby operation is prohibited (see paragraph 32).

Per claim 4-6, Maruyama further teaches that the control means enables the standby operation when a second predetermined condition is satisfied when the radio environment measuring means detects a change in the state of the radio environment involved in the standby operation from the relatively bad state to a relatively good state and the control means commands the notification means to carry out a second notification operation when the standby operation is enabled (see paragraphs 37-42).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 8 and 9 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Maruyama (JP11127300).

Maruyama discloses that Maruyama discloses a mobile terminal having telephonic function and comprising a control means, wherein the control means carries out both a standby operation for monitoring and incoming call and an image processing operation for processing an image captured by an image capture means, wherein the control means prohibits the standby operation during an image capture operation of the image capture for capturing the image when a first predetermined condition is satisfied (see paragraphs 29-39).

Maruyama doesn't expressly teach a camera-dedicated mode. However, Maruyama teaches that the image processing section converts the image to one of the image format (see paragraphs 24, 25) and one ordinary skill in the art knows that a camera has an image processing section. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to integrate a camera to a wireless phone such that the wireless phone would have more features and a user would be able to take picture with a wireless phone.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Narayanaswami(US006657654B2) discloses a camera for use with personal digital assistants with high speed communication link.
